What's your dream job?

A combination brew pub/political and not-for-profit consulting firm that hosts community arts and literature salons on the weekends.

Describe your job hunt in six words or fewer.

Rejection e-mails feel like an accomplishment!

What's your top tip for living cheaply in Chicago?

I coupon-clip like crazy and hoard the carry-out menus with two-for-one specials printed on them that everyone else in my building seems to ignore.

Hiring managers should give you a call because ...

I can make a connection—in writing or in person—like no other.

What's the most important thing RedEye readers don't know about you?

Don't let my impractical liberal arts degree fool you. I started working in local government when I was 16, and I know how to navigate policy intricacies, press releases and big egos with aplomb.

Many gamers exchange cyberbullets—and hate speech—while they play “Call of Duty.”

War of Words

Gamers split on how to take aim at digital hate speech

SPOKANE, Wash. It's not just cyberbullets that are exchanged during firefights on the Xbox Live version of “Call of Duty.”

Many gamers also exchange hate speech over their headsets as they stalk each other across the virtual battlefields. Players trade racist, homophobic and anti-Semitic insults so frequently that game makers are taking steps to tone down the rhetoric.

One gamer told an opponent he presumed to be Jewish that he wished Hitler had succeeded in his mission. Many exchanges involve talk of rape or exult over the atomic bombing of Japan. There are frequent slurs on homosexuals, Asians, Hispanics and women.

Such comments can be heard on all online video gaming systems, including PlayStation Network, Blizzard Entertainment (“World of Warcraft”) and others.

“Personally, I don’t do a lot of online gaming for that reason,” said Flynn DeMarco, founder of the Web site gaygamer.net, which has worked with Microsoft and other companies on steps to clean up online gaming. “I don’t play with anybody I don’t already know.”

DeMarco said hate speech has been a problem for years. Game makers, despite some serious efforts, can only seek to limit the amount.

“A lot of the problem lies within the players themselves,” DeMarco said.

The widespread use of the slurs is partly fueled by the same anonymity that provides cover for abuse throughout cyberspace. Players can compete with people thousands of miles away and know them only by the fictional “gamertags” they use to identify themselves.

After years of tolerating abusive players, gamers have become more diligent about noting the gamertags of abusive players and reporting them to game companies. Abusive players can be punished or even banned, but the process is slow.

DID YOU KNOW?

When Xbox Live banned the use of gamertags or profile information that revealed sexual orientation, in an effort to reduce taunting, some gays and lesbians were upset because they wanted to use such IDs.

Microsoft, maker of the Xbox 360, has taken numerous steps to clean up the language on its Live service, which is by far the biggest online gaming service with some 23 million members.

Stephen Toulouse, director of policy and enforcement for Microsoft’s Xbox Live service, heads a team charged with providing a safe and enjoyable experience for customers.

“There is always a subset of humanity that goes toward miscreant behavior,” Toulouse said.

With 1 million to 2 million players online at any one time, most of the policing falls to other users who report hate speech to the company, he said.

Is gray the new black?

NEW YORK Among the more avant-garde looks shown on the runways of New York, London, Paris and Milan was one that seems ho-hum in real life: gray hair.

More mature models—some even in their, gasp, 40s—were stars at the previews of fall styles. And in the fashion world, that’s a radical turn from the use of models not old enough to drive a car, let alone wield a credit card.

“I wanted something different,” said Francisco Costa, creative director for the Calvin Klein Collection. “I wanted a cast that really represented a customer I design for, and that’s not really a 16-year-old.”

Costa hired gray-haired Kristen McMenamy, who also appeared at Viktor & Rolf, as well as ’90s sensations—and now mothers—Stella Tennant and Kirsty Hume.

Marc Jacobs, widely considered the most influential American designer, cast 47-year-old Elle Macpherson in his Louis Vuitton show, along with Bar Refaeli and Alessandra Ambrosio. Trendsetting Miuccia Prada used Ambrosio, Isabeli Fontana, Doutzen Kroes and Miranda Kerr—all best known as voluptuous Victoria’s Secret models and all in their mid-20s, a relatively advanced age for runway models.

It’s a smart move by the fashion industry to make itself more relatable to consumers. Costa acknowledges that the tough retail climate has helped force design houses to speak more directly to their customers.

“The woman who puts my clothes on needs a certain level of sophistication,” Costa says. “We wanted to acknowledge women who have always worn our clothes, women with their own identities, have full lives, have kids.”

TWEET OF THE WEEK

(dedicated to Justin Bieber and trending)
@indah_ndot: Justin Bieber is not trending?? Well...its ok..wont matter..he always trending in my heart..! i love u @justinbieber

Got a bowl cut and can sing like Whitney Houston? You're in luck.

How to be a god—for an hour or so

Trending. The word has been around for a while when referring to something popular online, as in "Justin Bieber is trending three times on Twitter. Oh and he's so cute."

You probably can't be as cute as Justin Bieber—I mean, get real—but you can share some of that seemingly hard-to-grab spotlight. That is, if you have a plan.

First, think of something you are good at. You say you are pretty sure you discovered life on a previously unknown planet and you think you found a cure for an infectious disease? Hmm. No. That won't work.

But you sing like Ke$ha in the shower? OK. Good start. Anything else to sell it? You're a 6-foot-4 guy with a beard and tattoos of puppies riding Harleys. Better! Explore this side of you more. In front of a webcam whenever possible.

Trust me. The Whitney Houston guy from Taiwan had no idea that crooning that he'll always love you in a voice that has Bobby Brown leaving him weird messages would make him trending. Same goes for Susan Boyle. I think she just wanted to get out of the house.

The secret is coming to terms with your special gift. Don't wait weeks for "Now That's What I Call Music 168.5" or "I Love the First Third of 2010" on VH6 (not available on basic cable). The faster you share what would have gotten you beat up back in high school, the better.

Clearly, it doesn't matter if you can't sing. But there's still hope—even if you refuse to open your mouth. How are you on a skateboard?

Got an iPad? Perfect. Get some wheels on that baby and hit the concrete, yo. Some guy put his iPad in a blender and the world loved him for a whole 45 minutes.

It's that simple. Go from regular to trending in minutes.

What's your trending talent? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. Or, for an extra shot at fame, send me a video. I promise I won't tell anyone. ;-)

Witnesses to the train crash Friday that killed Katie Lunn say safety features did not work at the crossing. WARREN SKLASKI PHOTO FOR TRIBUNE

Witnesses: No warning

Two drivers say there were no flashing lights before fatal train crash

Chicago Tribune

Workers in yellow vests armed with orange flags were standing at a railroad crossing Sunday evening with a watchful eye on vehicles rolling over a pair of tracks where two days earlier a still-unexplained crash killed a popular dance teacher.

As witnesses said Sunday that crossing gates on tracks that traverse Stuenkel Road near Governors Highway in University Park did not come down and lights did not flash to warn drivers of an approaching train, University Park Trustee Vivian Covington said the village has complained to the tracks' owner, Canadian National Railway Company, about poor track conditions.

Drivers have been getting little information as neither the village nor railroad officials will say where their investigation is headed or whether the cause of the crash has been found. Earlier Sunday, men sitting in Canadian National trucks near the tracks referred comment to a company spokesman. Other University Park trustees and Mayor Alvin McCowan did not return calls for comment.

Canadian National spokesman Patrick Waldron said CN is leading the investigation with the help of the Federal Railroad Administration. He said he could not comment further, citing an ongoing probe.

Katie Lunn, 26, of Lincoln Park, died after the gray SUV she was driving was sandwiched on the tracks at 9:42 p.m. Friday between cars that had braked for a stop sign as an Amtrak train headed through the intersection.

Two women who drove over the tracks just before the train hit Lunn said the crossing gates did not go down and the lights did not flash.

Several people familiar with the railroad crossing say it's difficult to navigate. Two sets of tracks are close to a four-way blinking stop sign. Drivers have one lane in each direction and a gravel shoulder. Traffic pours out from nearby Governors State University, with drivers often in a hurry.

Lauren E. Brown, a Cook County prosecutor, said she was driving directly in front of Lunn and just missed being hit herself. Brown said she was so startled, she looked around and saw the train had hit Lunn.

"When I went over the railroad tracks, the gate didn't go down. The lights didn't go on," said Brown, who was at a dance contest at Governors State that Lunn also had attended.

Only when Brown approached the second set of tracks, on which the train was driving, did she see the white light of the train, which then honked. She saw a "puff of dirt" as Lunn was struck. The gate finally came down when the last few train cars passed through the crossing, Brown said.

Driving just ahead of Brown was Lisa Smith, who also was leaving the dance contest. She said she didn't see the train until she was driving across the tracks.

There were no bells, no lights and no gate on its way down, she said.

Lawmakers looking into high-tech ID cards

Chicago Tribune

Because she was born in Chicago, Karen Peisker never imagined her bosses at UPS would suddenly question her right to work in the country legally.

But last month, an electronic employee verification system flagged the mail truck driver for possible identity fraud because she had been using her married name, Rivera, on her driver's license since 2007. Though Peisker joined the company in 1985, it put her at risk of being fired until she proved she was who she said she was.

"I couldn't believe it," said Peisker, 50, who repeatedly had to show up to work with her birth certificate, marriage license and U.S. passport until the confusion was cleared up.

Not uncommon, such problems with the federal E-verify software system—intended to pluck illegal immigrants out of the workforce—have led to proposals for a more wide-reaching solution that could be as culturally transformative as it is controversial. Until recently, it also might have seemed as futuristic as a Tom Cruise movie thriller.

Two U.S. senators prominent in immigration reform efforts have proposed that all Americans be issued biometric Social Security cards, containing codified data from either a fingerprint or retinal scan to help employers determine whether the holder is legal.

In explaining the only current bipartisan reform proposal, Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., has called such a high-tech Social Security card "a linchpin" in efforts to win support in Congress for fixing an immigration enforcement system that many agree is broken.

While details are still sketchy, Schumer and Sen. Lindsay Graham, R-S.C., have proposed that the new Social Security card be swiped by employers through a machine to match a fingerprint or some other biometric feature against data stored on computers. Those who refuse to cooperate or otherwise knowingly hire unauthorized workers would face fines and even prison.

Privacy groups call the idea chilling, and costly. Last week, 44 organizations sent a letter of protest to the White House and both senators, arguing that implementation of a biometric card could cost "hundreds of billions of dollars."

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

The son of Illinois Senate President John Cullerton (left) was charged this weekend with driving under the influence in a vehicle registered to the state Senate.

Senate leader's son charged with DUI in state vehicle

Authorities say the 26-year-old son of Illinois Senate President John Cullerton has been cited with driving under the influence in a vehicle registered to the state Senate.

Chicago police spokeswoman Antoinette Ursitti said Garritt M. Cullerton of Chicago was pulled over after midnight Sunday in the 800 block of North Dearborn Street. Cullerton had a blood-alcohol level of 0.188, according to Chicago police. That is more than twice the legal limit of 0.08.

Ursitti said Cullerton was cited with DUI, negligent driving and improper lane usage. He's due in court May 26.

"A Senate vehicle assigned to the Senate President for official legislative business was used by his son without his authorization," said a statement issued Sunday evening by John Cullerton's office. "The Senate President is disappointed that this incident occurred and takes this matter very seriously."

Cullerton's spokeswoman, Rikeesha Phelon, said the 2009 Ford Escape is assigned to the senator and that he is working to ensure such an incident does not happen again.

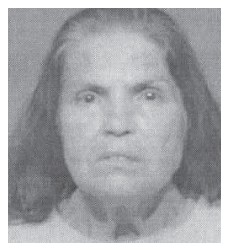

Messages left Sunday at phone listings for Garritt Cullerton were not immediately returned.

Police ask for help locating woman

Chicago police are hoping the public can help them locate a 67-year-old Logan Square woman who went missing last week.

Lydia Maldonado lived in the 1800 block of North Kedzie Avenue until a recent fire at her home caused her to abandon it, police said. Maldonado, 67, is described as Hispanic, 5 feet tall, 110 pounds, with brown eyes and red hair. She was last seen carrying a neon-green zippered bag.

Anyone with information on Maldonado's whereabouts should call the Grand Central Area special victims unit at 312-746-8365.

Woman, triplets, doctor celebrate same birthday

Talk about a birthday party. Evelia Rivera spent her 25th birthday at an Oak Lawn hospital delivering her triplet sons: Jayden Edwin, Jordan Michael and Julian Kobe.

But it turns out that wasn't enough of a celebration. Dr. Steven Ambrose, who helped perform the Cesarean section Wednesday at Christ Medical Center, was celebrating his birthday, too. Rivera says at first she thought the doctor was joking, but soon staff at the hospital started wishing him a happy birthday.

Body found at North Avenue Beach

The body of an unidentified person was found at North Avenue Beach on Sunday afternoon.

Chicago Fire Department divers responded to a call of the body about 3:15 p.m., said Chief Kevin MacGregor, a Fire Department spokesman.

The body was reported to be found at or near the shore of Lake Michigan. Further information about the discovery of the body was not available.

5 airlines promise no carry-on fees

In a remarkable gesture to fee-weary air travelers, five major U.S. airlines are committing to actually not charge a fee for something—the carry-on bag.

The announcement Sunday comes despite the fact that some of those same airlines are expected to report first-quarter losses next week amid significantly higher fuel prices and the beating they took from the heavy February snowstorms. Add-on fees for things such as checked bags, pillows and food are a key revenue stream for them.

New York Sen. Charles Schumer said Sunday that American, Delta Air Lines, United Airlines, US Airways and JetBlue Airways each have committed to him that they would not institute fees for carry-on bags. He said he was hopeful other carriers would follow suit.

“We believe it is something that’s important to our customers and they value, and we will continue making that available to them at no charge,” American Airlines spokesman Roger Frizzell said.

It wasn’t immediately clear how long the airlines had pledged not to charge for carry-ons.

Schumer said he planned to meet soon with Spirit Airlines leadership. The small Florida airline in August will begin charging customers up to $45 to place a bag in an overhead bin.

American, Delta Air Lines, United Airlines, US Airways and JetBlue Airways each have said that they will not charge extra for carry-on bags. AP FILE PHOTO

2010 STANLEY CUP playoffs

WESTERN CONFERENCE QUARTERFINALS ★ GAME 2

Blackhawks forward Kris Versteeg is scolded by referee Chris Rooney during Sunday's game.

Versteeg in search of breakout

Chicago Tribune

Once the puck hit Kris Versteeg's blade, via a nice no-look backhand feed from Patrick Kane, there was maybe 2 feet of space between Versteeg and the Blackhawks' first post-season goal in Game 1 against the Predators.

Three or four mini-moves later, the puck trickled harmlessly away. No shot was recorded. It was one of countless postseason chances that come and go, but it's the sort of chance Versteeg has been fighting to cash in since midseason.

The third-year winger has just one multipoint game since mid-January. But with the formidable Predators defense focused on other lines, Versteeg logically could make a difference if he can locate a groove.

"I want to be a guy that can be relied on to score when need be," Versteeg said after the morning skate Sunday. "But I also want to play good at the other end of the ice. I know what my role is, and the coaches know what my role is. When I go out there, now I have to execute it."

On April 7, Versteeg filled the scoresheet with a goal and three assists in a victory over the Blues, an effort notable for both the production and the void that preceded it. Not since Jan. 14 had he recorded more than one point in a game.

He has demonstrated the ability to produce when it matters most, with four goals and 12 points in his first postseason a year ago. And Hawks coach Joel Quenneville clung to that April 7 explosion as a better indication of how Versteeg is trending.

"Over the course of the year, he's had some real good stretches—one of them is right about now, where he's got the puck a lot and he's got speed in his game," Quenneville said Sunday morning. "Certain guys some nights are going to break out. To me, he's always a threat to be that guy."

BLACKHAWKS 2, NASHVILLE 0 Series tied 1-1.

BACK IN THE HUNT

PATRICK KANE SCORES, ANTTI NIEMI EARNS SHUTOUT

Chicago Tribune

The burning question heading into the second game of the Western Conference quarterfinals of the Stanley Cup playoffs was whether the Blackhawks would be singing the blues as they traveled to the home of country music for Game 3.

They won't, courtesy of a 2-0 victory over the Predators on Sunday night that evened the best-of-seven series at one game apiece. The series shifts to Nashville for Game 3 on Tuesday night with the Hawks assured of a return trip to the United Center later in the week.

Everything that went wrong for the Hawks in their 4-1 defeat in Game 1 Friday night was reversed as they controlled the play at both ends of the ice. They got a goal and assist from Patrick Kane, while Dave Bolland added a goal, and Antti Niemi, who stopped 23 shots, stood tall in net to get back on the winning track. Niemi outdueled fellow Finnish goalie Pekka Rinne to earn his first career postseason victory and the Hawks' first playoff shutout since Ed Belfour blanked the Flames on April 19, 1996.

The Hawks had the better of the play during the first period, outshooting the Predators 13-5. Early on, Rinne halted a chance on the power play by Marian Hossa and Tomas Koppecky's rebound attempt.

Jonathan Toews took a nice feed from Hossa and bounced the puck off the crossbar midway through the period. A short time later, the Hawks thought they'd scored when Bolland poked a puck from between Rinne's pads and into the net, but the referee had whistled the play dead.

Niemi wasn't tested much in the first as Nashville didn't get its first shot on goal until just over eight minutes had elapsed. The inactivity didn't seem to bother Niemi, who stopped Steve Sullivan's attempt for the left side while on the power play.

Kane made it 2-0 early in the third when he skated over the Nashville line, held the puck as he closed in on Rinne and ripped a wrist shot past the goaltender to the stick side. It was Kane's 11th career postseason goal and extended his points streak to seven games, including the last five contests of the regular season.

The Hawks were intent on following the pattern of the other seven first-round series, which all at some point featured 1-1 splits after road teams picked up a victory in each matchup.

Blackhawks goaltender Antti Niemi makes a save against Nashville during the second period Sunday in Game 2 of the Western Conference quarterfinal series.

SCOTT STRAZZANTE/TRIBUNE PHOTOS

"Teams know how to play on the road now," Hawks winger Kris Versteeg said. "You know what you're going to get from each team. You know who's going to be matched up against whom and you kind of know going into the game what it's going to be all about."

STAR SUPPORT

Lake Forest native Vince Vaughn took in the game with his wife, Kyla Weber, in seats on the glass. Members of the White Sox, among them Gordon Beckham, A.J. Pierzynski and Paul Konerko, also attended the game. Unlike the Cubs' visit to the United Center on Friday, however, the Sox watched the Blackhawks pull out a win. Kind of symbolic, eh? REDEYE, GETTY IMAGES PHOTO

1 How worried are you about the Blackhawks?	My therapist used to be on retainer for the next two months. Now he's just on for this week.	I think there's reason for optimism ... optimism and kidney-punching while the ref isn't looking.	I'm more worried about getting bumped by a team from Nashville. Can we beat them in a hoedown?	I'm Jewish and a Cubs fan. I worry about everything.	I haven't been this worried since that time my Skittles stash dipped below 2 pounds.
2 Why have there been so many surprises in the NHL playoffs' first round?	They weren't surprises if you understand the NHL playoffs are the best sporting event in the world.	Volcanic ash from Iceland has limited the foreign hockey groupie supply to Canadians.	Because everyone waited until the last two weeks of the season to watch. Yeah, I said it.	Hockey's postseason equals "Lost's" final season. Confusing and frustrating.	Everyone loves a surprise party. No clowns, though, please.
3 What does Hawks coach Joel Quenneville mean when he says they can be more "abrasive"?	He means he wants to hurt people with his moustache.	If the bad guys are the Predators, the Hawks are aliens. Clearly this was code for "Set lasers to 'liquefy.'"	More beards, more defense. Call them the steel wool curtain?	That it's time to channel their inner Ozzie Guillen.	He wants them to play rough. Like Jimmy and Leo do in the office.
4 What chance do you give the Bulls to avoid a sweep by Cleveland?	Zero ... zip ... nada ... zilch ... Cubs chances of making the playoffs ... Milton Bradley's IQ.	I'm thinking of a number between 1 and 10. Percent.	A good one. They'll get at least one at home. Then bring on Joe Johnson and a new coach!	Isn't it Cleveland that could use a sweeping? How about an entire city cleaning!	What about the chance of Cleveland avoiding a sweep? I back the Bulls.
5 Why is Alfonso Soriano really losing his "hop"?	I stopped caring two years ago.	Because when he lands, it'll most likely be on the 60-day DL.	Alfonso Soriano still plays baseball?	$136 million doesn't buy you what it used to.	MLB must have ruled KangaROOS illegal again.

Deng aching to play

Even before last season's epic playoff series with the Celtics unfolded, Luol Deng spoke eloquently about how much it hurt to sit with a stress fracture in his right tibia.

How painful it must be then for Deng to receive his redemptive chance and, thanks to pesky and persistent pain in his left knee and calf, not play at 100 percent.

"I don't feel good at all," Deng said following Sunday's practice in preparation for Game 2 of the Bulls' Eastern Conference quarterfinal series with the Cavaliers. "The calf strain took a lot out of me. And it's still bothering me. I missed 12 games but I wanted to get back into it because I know I'm needed for the playoffs."

"You want to be 100 percent, but at this time of the season you're not going to be. My name is on the roster. I'm out there and playing. So I have to do what I have to do."

through a 5-for-15 effort for 12 points in close to 39 minutes. Often, Deng was relegated to watching from the corner, underscoring the Bulls' lack of ball movement, settling for jumpers and inability to get to the free-throw line.

La Salle St.) is a little more lawyer-y, but that's nothing $12 domestic buckets (Mondays) can't fix. If you're up for a scene and cost is no object, look no farther than Roof, atop the Wit (201 N. State St.).

In River North, Hub 51 (51 W. Hubbard St.) draws a fun early crowd in the bar; if you don't agree, you can busy yourself with half-price happy hour sushi (3-6 p.m. daily). The rest of Hubbard Street can be sort of hit or miss, but we're pretty darn excited for the second location of Blue Frog Bar & Grill (22 E. Hubbard St.). It's set to open sometime this week. See you there? —M. KATHLEEN PRATT, DINING PRODUCER

Subterranean lounge Haven (650 N. Dearborn St.) opened earlier this year in River North aiming to offer exactly what you're looking for: affordable bottle service for the masses. If the bride doesn't insist on super high-end picks like Veuve Clicquot, you can reserve a table and enjoy the pomp and circumstance of bottle service without digging too deep into your wallets. Popular vodkas such as Grey Goose and Effen run $150-$175 here; as a point of reference, the latter will run you $270 at chi-chi cocktail lounge Double A. You may not get the same dotting attention as you would with the higher price tag, but you will be able to stick to your budget.

—LISA ARNETT, NIGHTLIFE AND SHOPPING PRODUCER

For a total departure from the beer-sloshing brouhaha near the ballpark, take a walk east to Broadway and look for the red lantern-adorned storefront next door to sushi spot Wakamono. Inside, you'll find Wang's (3317 N. Broadway), a tiny, trippy bar covered in Chinatown kitsch where you'll find straight and gay couples on dates and small groups hunkering down at bistro tables nursing ginger martinis. For beers and board games, Guthrie's Tavern (1300 W. Addison St.) is just far enough from Wrigleyville's main strip to maintain a lower-key crowd. And if you "don't want any part of the Cubs" because you're a Sox fan, than take cover at Finley Dunne's (3458 N. Lincoln Ave.), a North Side refuge for fans of the South Side hit men.

DISGUISE THE LIMIT

IT WAS FANDEMONIUM AT C2E2 THIS WEEKEND

Chicago Tribune

Who knew McCormick Place, the massive convention hall on Lake Michigan, could be—POW!—so beloved?

This past weekend, for three days of Spandex-clad fandemonium and comic book panels, it seemed so. McCormick hosted Chicago's first large comic convention in decades. Called C2E2, the Chicago Comic & Entertainment Expo was a success, at least according to the Black Cat, Spider-Man's ex-flame.

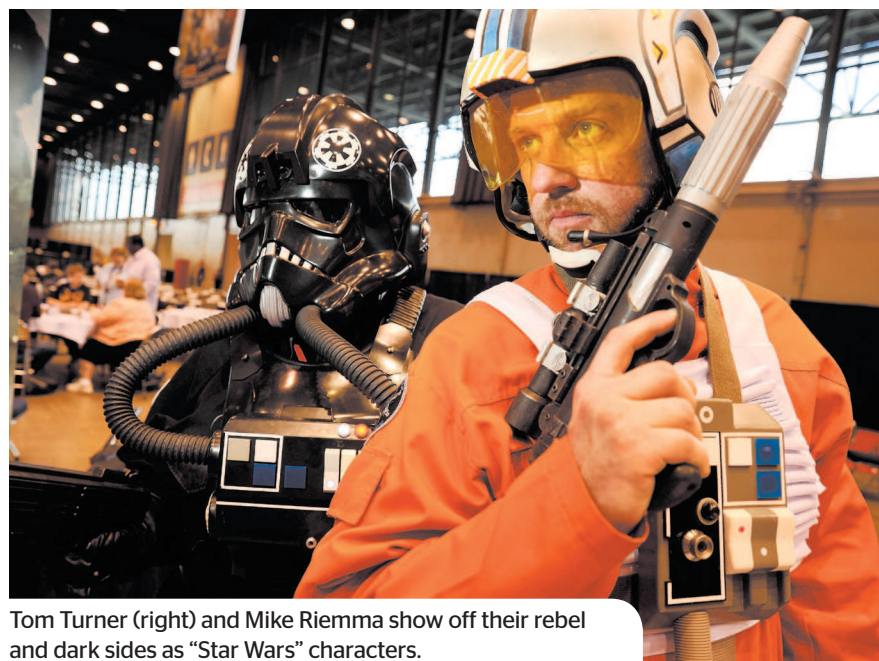

"What Chicago needed for a long time is its own comic con," said Laschita Whelan of Wheeling, who dressed as Black Cat for the show, "and C2E2 is exactly what we asked for."

Translation: A comic convention within the city limits, focused on comic books and not movies, TV or toys—in other words, something different than Wizard World, which has drawn crowds to Rosemont every summer for the past 20 years. Reed Exhibitions, which created C2E2, estimated attendance at roughly 27,500 combined from Friday, Saturday and Sunday—a bit less than the 30,000 that were hoped for, but a strong first year.

Zach LaVoy of Des Plaines and James Sanjurjo of Bensenville, wearing matching tan Ghostbusters jumpsuits, said McCormick had ample room, fresh air and sunlight—characteristics often lacking at comic book conventions. Despite questioning looks as the two strolled through the Kitchen and Bath Industry Show in a neighboring hall, Sanjurjo said they would return next year.

At which point, Linda Gassman, an interior designer who had wandered over from the kitchen and bath show, stopped to compliment them on their homemade proton packs. LaVoy thanked her, saying, "These proton packs have lasted, like, five years." And so, peace reigned in the nerd universe.

COMIC RELIEF

RedEye gets the inside dish from the C2E2 set.

Suffice it to say the people-watching—make that costume-watching—at C2E2 is top-notch. RedEye talked to eye-catching costume-wearers and prop-bearers at the Chicago Comic & Entertainment Expo on Friday and asked them five questions—including what superhero would best rep for Chicago and what was the worst get-up they'd seen since they arrived. Check out their responses—that is, if you can tear your eyes away from what they're wearing. —KYRA KYLES, REDEYE

DAISY HIBBARD

24, Indianapolis

- » What's your get-up about? "I'm Ramona Flowers from the 'Scott Pilgrim' [comic] series."
- » What under-the-radar comic book do you think everyone should know about? "Aspen Comics."
- » Worst actor to portray a comic book hero? "Ben Affleck. He was awful as Daredevil."

BRETT HIBBARD

25, Indianapolis

- » What's the fish about? "He's Trevor the Travel Trout. I take him all over and take pictures of people in costumes and celebrities holding him."
- » Who is the worst actor to portray a hero? "Everyone in the 'X-Men' movie."
- » Which superhero would fit in best as a Chicagoan? "Batman because Gotham City has always looked very similar to Chicago."

CAITLIN TOUCHTON

21, Michigan

- » What's your costume? "I'm Dr. Girlfriend from the 'Venture Bros.'"
- » If Chicago had a superhero, who or what should that hero fight? "The Chicago River monster. That river is disgusting."
- » The worst actor to play a comic book hero? "David Hasselhoff as Nick Fury."

BRYAN BADILLA

19, Albany Park

- » What's your get-up about? "My costume is the character Roy Mustang from 'Full Metal Alchemist.'"
- » Which superhero would fit in best as a Chicagoan? "Iron Man. Chicago matches him because we have a butload of metal sculptures and artwork outside."

- » Who is the worst actor to portray a comic book hero? "Tobey Maguire as Spider-Man. He did OK with the dorky part as Peter Parker, but even when he was Spider-Man, he was still awkward."

ROB MILLER

35, Palatine

- » What's your get-up about? "I'm a ['Star Wars'] stormtrooper ... a biker scout if you want to get technical."
- » What brought you to C2E2? "I love comics, anime and, obviously, 'Star Wars.' I also love the costuming, and it's great to see people's reactions, especially little kids, to mine."
- » If Chicago had a superhero, who or what should that hero fight? "Corruption in City Hall."
- » Who is the worst actor to portray a comic book hero? "Val Kilmer as Batman."

Set phasers to fun

Seen and heard at the Lakeside Center of McCormick Place during this weekend's Chicago Comic & Entertainment Expo.

REDEYE, TRIBUNE

Carrie Fisher
CHRISSWEDA / TRIBUNE

Feisty Fisher

The wait to get the autograph of "Star Wars" actress Carrie Fisher had stretched to 45 minutes Saturday when Rebecca Spearow, 36, of Chicago, walked up with nothing to be signed. "I don't want your autograph," she told Fisher. "I just want to say thank you for making me feisty." Fisher's eyes went wide. She grabbed Spearow's hand and signed her name on it. For more of their conversation, go to chicagotribune.com.

Drawing fans

Daniel Moore, 24, of Naperville, attended the DC Comics talent search Saturday with several artists carrying large portfolios of drawings and hoping to break into the business. Moore, dressed as the Green Arrow, showed DC art director Mark Chiarello a sheet of lined yellow paper containing rough sketches, saying apologetically, "Sir ... I wanted to see if you think there's any talent here." "This looks pretty cool," Chiarello said.

'Who' is that?

BBC America debuted the new "Doctor Who" season Saturday, but C2E2 attendees got to see the first episode Friday. They also saw the American premiere of Episode 2, "The Beast Below," which will air this Saturday. Said Chicagoan Giselle Galan, 20, a fan of the new Doctor, Matt Smith: "I didn't think I'd like him as much as I do. I love him!"

Haunted Chicago

Will Syfy's "Ghost Hunters" be haunting Chicago again? During a Saturday night panel, paranormal investigators Steve Gonsalves and Dave Tango asked about 150 fans if they knew of any haunted spots in Chicago. The duo made mental notes of the possibilities, such as Hull House, Excalibur and Metro nightclubs and Robinson Woods.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Taurus

April 20-May 20

With three planets in your sign boosting your ego, you're at risk of becoming an arrogant jerk. Just because you were able to pick up three women at once and convince them to join you in a foursome doesn't mean you're a love god. Really.

Gemini May 21-June 21

You've been hesitant to move forward with a relationship, but Venus is encouraging you to go for it. If you don't take a risk, you'll never know if this person is "the one." Air signs like you need to learn how to follow their gut.

Cancer June 22-July 22

You're measuring your romantic situation through other people's eyes. Your roommate thinks your new boyfriend is an idiot. Your mom worries that your girlfriend is "unsuitable." The moon says pay no attention to the critics.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You might need to persuade your conservative partner to do something wild in the bedroom. A sexy moon will help you convince him or her that it's time to try some chocolate sauce, leather gear and/or some role-playing.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

The sun is making you impatient. Your boyfriend has to travel for work or your girlfriend has to spend some time dealing with family matters. But you just want loads of attention and instant sexual gratification.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You enjoy a certain amount of banter and intellectual discourse with your partners. But you and your honey are disagreeing about almost everything. Venus is reminding you that love doesn't always have to be a battlefield.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Funky Uranus is inspiring you to get a little creative. But trying to seduce your partner while dressed as a superhero might be a little too creative. Sometimes small things have a big effect. Try candles, massage oil and sexy music.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

As Venus moves opposite your sign for a few weeks, you could be wondering if your love life has been cursed. It hasn't, not that that's going to make you feel any better. Since romantic matters are giving you a queasy sensation, keep lots of antacids on hand.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You'll have a lot of social opportunities this week, thanks to Mercury. Get out there and party. It's time to circulate and talk to people. Share some laughs and some flirtation, and you could be pleasantly surprised at what happens next.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Venus is turning you into a space cadet. You'll lose your boyfriend's phone number or misplace your girlfriend's dog while you're bringing it home from a walk. Try to stay focused. Make lists of things you need to do and staple them to your forehead.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

It's time to engage in some meditation and self-reflection. You need to find closure from your last romantic situation so you can have greater wisdom moving forward. A moon opposition is showing you that you need to sort a few things out.

Aries March 21-April 19

You're in the mood to show off your latest lover. You'll drag your boyfriend home to meet your parents or insist that your girlfriend hang out with your beer buddies. Mars warns you that sometimes certain people just don't mix.

Prestigious Medical Journal Reveals Brain Oxygen-Boosting Nutrient Breakthrough

Regain 10-15 Years of Lost Memory Power

New pill can help sharpen focus, clear away "brain fog", erase up to 15 years of lost memory power!

If you're one of the millions concerned or even embarrassed by your fading focus or memory...forgetting names, important dates or to-do items, getting words stuck on the tip of your tongue or perhaps having one too many senior moments — then here's some great news!

Dramatic Reversal of Memory Loss

The peer reviewed Medical Journal, JANA, recently announced astounding results after the testing of a new "Memory Pill" called Procera AVH that can help restore as much as 10 to 15 years of mental decline, lost memory recall speed and even improve your mood in just 30 days or less.

Medical Journal states:

"The data provides evidence that this compound improves a range of cognitive variables... and appears to improve mental clarity and mental energy and repair mood disturbances... [with] speed of memory retrieval [improvement] that suggests functioning at approximately 10 or more years younger." Stough, C., Phd, JANA 2009

It has been shown to literally "Wake Up" a tired, sluggish brain.

Joshua Reynolds, Clinical Researcher and Author featured on the TV Program The Mental Edge.

author of "20/20 Brainpower", Joshua Reynolds.

Over the course of many years of testing and refining his natural fast-acting formula, Reynolds narrowed his search down to three of Mother Nature's most effective brain energy nutrients in precise, clinical doses. He calls these three ingredients the "three Miracle Memory Molecules"!

How Procera AVH Works

1. Oxygenates your brain cells — for increased mental energy.
2. Restores your depleted neurotransmitters — essential for better focus, learning & recall.
3. Protects against damaging environmental toxins — fighting free radicals that can ravage your brain.

Imagine Living Life Sharp And Focused!

Satisfied Procera AVH customers across the country report what Clinical Studies have shown:

- Better Memory and Faster Recall
- Improved Concentration and Mental Clarity
- Less Mental Fatigue and Confusion
- Better Mood

Is YOUR Brain Starved of Precious Oxygen?

After analyzing over a MILLION brains, Reynolds identified the main reasons our brains seem to age faster than our bodies.

His research concludes "It's a simple concept; your aging brain can't quite catch its breath. Once you reach 50, you may have already lost up to HALF your brain power as brain cells are virtually gasping for oxygen."

Memory pill ingredient "...lights up aging brains like a Christmas tree! 100% Energizing!"

Increased oxygen from one of Procera AVH's natural ingredients — Vinpocetine.

Reynolds further reveals in his medically acclaimed book, "20/20 Brainpower", that our brains are experiencing an energy crisis, "and with each passing birthday less and less oxygen and fewer brain nutrients called neurotransmitters get to your energy starved brain cells which can cause memory loss, mental fatigue, mental fog and low energy".

Medical research confirms that severely depleted supplies of neurotransmitters and oxygen can dull your cognitive powers, sabotaging your ability to concentrate, remember things and even make the simplest decisions.

Reynolds confirms, "Procera AVH may fix all of that by helping your brain get the oxygen and vital nutrients it needs to be sharp and clear — throughout the day."

Many people who have struggled with forgetfulness and poor concentration say they notice an "almost immediate" effect.

Ingredients in Procera AVH were shown to wake up your brain by increasing circulation in the brain, flooding energy-starved cells with fresh supplies of invigorating oxygen and vital neurotransmitters. And, "just like after a good exercise session, it gets you feeling super refreshed and reenergized. Procera AVH gets those neurons fired up again!" says Reynolds.

"It's Like Putting On A Pair of Reading Glasses and Seeing Clearly Again!"

"My brain was able to find words in a flash..." commented Barbara D, FL

Improve Memory and Focus — Without A Prescription

"Since taking Procera I've noticed a huge difference in my mental clarity and focus... my short term memory is better and my recall of facts is quicker." says Eric L, CA

"I felt solid, bright, alive, and energetic, clear and focused..." says Bibi C, CT

Get Back Your Youthful Memory and Concentration!

Why suffer another minute from your lack of focus, concentration and memory? Why risk creating embarrassing and potentially dangerous situations? Leto throws out pitch, doles out hug

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

Rather than just tell me what he had been up to since arriving in Chicago, Jared Leto, sitting backstage at the Aragon Ballroom on Friday, decided he wanted to show me. The actor-turned-rocker pulled out a baseball he received that day at the Cubs game and proudly showed me his new souvenir, which was signed by, well, I couldn't tell who it was signed by.

"It's No. 40, baby," Leto said hours before his band, 30 Seconds to Mars, took the stage. Who's No. 40?

Leto, switching from confident to embarrassed, shrugged his shoulders and quietly mouthed "I don't know." Turns out it was Cubs pitcher James Russell, but you can't expect Leto to know that. He lives in L.A. and guesses that he hasn't thrown a baseball in 20 years.

"I was never a baseball player, but it's good to do things like that," said Leto, sporting the same leather jacket and scarf he wore when he threw out the first pitch at Wrigley. "Sometimes on your tour, you can get locked in."

The band is promoting its third album, "This is War." Leto is known best for his film roles (including "Fight Club" and "Panic Room"), but the group has established itself as more than just the band led by the "My So-Called Life" guy. Leto is humble about their success ("We're just grateful to have these experiences"), which isn't what you would expect from a guy rocking a pink mohawk, eyeliner and blue nail polish.

"I did it the other day," Leto said about the new 'do, admitting there wasn't much thought behind the color choice. "This ain't gonna last too long. It's just for fun. On the road, you can embrace the spirit of recklessness and freedom. It's not like I have to show up to an office and adhere to a dress code."

After the interview, Leto did something I'd experienced only once before in my journalistic career: He hugged me.

I'm not talking one of those half-handshake-half-hug deals, but a two-handed embrace. The only other person to hug me after an interview? Jesse Jane, the adult film star.

» Ben McKenzie was spotted at Rockit Bar & Grill in River North and at Benny's Chop House on Saturday. The former "OC" star was in town shooting the film "Sin Bin."

» Leto, Chris Daughtry and Samantha Ronson all stayed at Hotel Sax over the weekend. Leto stopped by Sunda and Jbar on Wednesday and Big Star on Friday.

» Houston Astros pitcher Roy Oswalt celebrated with teammates at Sub 51 after pitching seven scoreless innings against the Cubs on Saturday.

» Tony Romo hung out in the VIP section of District on Friday.

» Lil Jon partied at Y Bar and RiNo on Thursday.

» The Milwaukee Brewers' Prince Fielder and Corey Hart dined at Sunda on Wednesday.

» "Big Love" star Bill Paxton attended the Apollo 13 40th anniversary gala Tuesday at the Adler Planetarium.

Study my booze moves

The studs at Playboy have said it all: "It's good to be a Longhorn." The magazine released its top 10 party schools for 2010 this weekend and coming in at the top is the University of Texas at Austin. The school's weather, local political atmosphere and night life were factors in its victory over No. 2 West Virginia University. The rest of the top 5: 3. University of Wisconsin-Madison, 4. University of Miami, Florida, 5. East Carolina University. The University of Iowa clocked in at No. 10. Go Hawkeyes!

Chains of command

"The Cleveland Show" producer Rich Appel figured he'd learn something about music when Kanye West guest-voiced on Fox's animated hit. But West offered some notes on how his character, Kenny West, would dress. "If you want the chains, have a T-shirt," he said. Now Appel knows what to do. "Not that I'm ever going to wear chains," Wilmette native Appel said Saturday at C2E2, "but if I do, it's not going to be with a collared Polo shirt." The West episode, called "Brotherly Love," airs May 2. For more on "The Cleveland Show" at C2E2, go to redye.chicago.com/showpatrol.

'National Treasure: Beyond the Grave'

It appears Nicolas Cage's adventuring spirit has gone too far. TMZ reports the "National Treasure" star recently had a 9-foot-tall white pyramid built in a New Orleans cemetery as his final resting place. Glad he's planning ahead for these things.

Did that include the tip?

While scores of travelers wait for the Icelandic ash to settle, John Cleese has found a way around it. Sky News reports the comedian spent $5,000 on a cab ride from Norway to Brussels, then caught a train back to London. His rep says there was a lack of other options, but we all know that the allure of the back seat of a cab is tough to resist.

HOT DATE

May 23

That's when Kevin Jonas will appear on NBC's "Minute to Win It" in hopes of raising money for his charity, Change For The Children Foundation. The JoBro will donate all of his winnings to the charity, NBC tells people.com.

THE DIGIT

$20 million

That's the estimated amount "How to Train Your Dragon" earned at theaters over the weekend, giving it a slim $250,000 lead on "Kick-Ass" for No. 1 at the box office.
